

Are you tired of being tired?

Cranky about everything and nothing? Can't think straight; can't remember; can't even get a good night's sleep? If it isn't the hot flashes, then it's the night sweats. And don't even go to the sex drive place! What's that?

If this describes your midlife days and nights, you are probably going through menopause, or andropause (male menopause). This means the production of hormones—the ones that used to keep you so perfectly in balance—has slowed to a trickle. Your body is aging.

The good news? You can still do something about it. You just need to replace what's missing.

SottoPelle® was designed to do just that—to replace the estrogen and testosterone that are so key to your well-being. And we're not talking synthetic pharmaceuticals. SottoPelle® pellets are manufactured from the highest quality botanical ingredients available and specifically formulated to identically match what your body once produced. No horse urine. No fillers. Just pure, natural, biologically equivalent hormones—plain and simple.

Easy • Safe • Effective

Forget the pills, the patches, the injections and all the rest. SottoPelle® uses the most convenient and effective delivery method available: subcutaneous pellets, which are painlessly implanted beneath the skin in less than a minute. Haven't heard about pellets? It may surprise you to know that biologically equivalent pellets have been used successfully by patients throughout Europe and the United States since the 1930's. And study after study has proven them to be not only safe, but beneficial to the health of those using this method of hormone replacement. If it seems too good to be true, see for yourself. You'll wonder why you haven't heard about SottoPelle® sooner.
